hen I first began to hunt, literature on bow hunting for whitetail deer on the ground in fields and hedgerows did not exist. Most of the information I found pertained to hunting in tree stands. The areas I was given permission to hunt did not allow the use of tree stands of any kind. As a result - with little to go on - I had to learn by trial and error. It eventually took me three seasons before I succeeded. In retrospect, there were things Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes that were important which I had to learn by doing; things I never wanted to forget. This work began as a collection of field notes for my own personal use. Eventually the idea evolved to use these notes to help others.

The first part of my challenge was selecting the right hunting equipment and developing a technique. I had to develop a fluid archery style: learning to accurately shoot the bow. That's a no brainer, but there was more to learn. As opposed to hunting in a tree stand, shooting at a downward angle with gravity, hunting on the ground with flat horizontal shooting will cause the arrow to drop off quicker. Hence, bow poundage becomes more important: the higher the poundage the less arch there will be. This means the trajectory or the arrow will be flatter. Another variable which is part of the Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes same problem is properly judging distances to the deer, and not Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes over shooting or undershooting. Initially, I missed many shots, because I didn't understand all these variables. All of this must be taken into account.

I had to Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes learn the importance of Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes servicing and tuning your bow. I had to learn what equipment I needed, and what equipment I didn't need. To become proficient I needed to Bow Hunting

Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes practice and practice often. I had to learn to control my breathing as well as my emotions. This was almost overwhelming for a novice! We'll cover I'll cover everything step by step so it makes sense. Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes Just for the record it is much harder to hunt deer on the ground vs. a tree stand, for a number of reasons, which we will address.

Where will you hunt? Long before the hunting season begins, check out farms with large grassy areas, with adjacent woods, and start asking permission. The more places you have to try, the better off you'll be. Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes Be appreciative, but more important be willing to do some odd jobs as a way of saying thanks. Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes

When you scout for a site to hunt signs of deer activity is important, but visually seeing deer moving Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes to and from feeding areas in the morning and evening is the primary way to confirm you Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes are hunting in the right spot. Tracks and buck rubs could be weeks old.

You have to determine where on the property you will hunt and be on station long before the deer move in. I learned being patient Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes and waiting for the deer to move is another important skill. You have Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes to be able to sit quietly and remain as motionless as possible. Initially, I found it difficult to sit still for Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes long periods. But I soon learned moving around gives your position away to squirrels, Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes jays, or the neighbor's dog, and they in turn will warn the deer an intruder has entered their lair. But, I learned there was a Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes way to sit quietly and enjoy this experience, too.

During hunting season, the weather is warm and you're not enduring cold weather. The fall trees explode in a myriad of colors. The air is filled with the fragrance of harvested corn, cut clover grass, and Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes burning leaves carried on gentle breezes. You can almost forget you came to hunt deer as you sit Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes quietly watching clouds moving across the sky or leaves shimmering in the breeze. Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes

It's a time when nature will reclaim you as one of her lost subjects. In this age of rushing to and fro, it is therapeutic to sit in one place, relax and experience life as it was intended.

If you've done your homework, be prepared to have a lot of fun. I've had birds land on my head and shoulders, chipmunks chase each other around my feet as if I were a branch Bow Hunting Whitetail Deer in Fields and Hedgerows: Over Three Years of Field Notes or tree stump. I have had deer 10 feet away that could not see me. You'll soon realize the "empty" field is teeming with wildlife: butterflies, hawks, groundhogs, possums, foxes, raccoons, red and gray squirrels - all make their appearance. Song birds like Warblers and Red Wing Blackbird nest in the tall grasses. Jays and Wood Thrush call from the trees and undergrowth, and Crows in the upper fields. With the right attitude, I found myself increasingly appreciating every rock, tree
