Prologue

Early 90's

Whip sat behind the wheel of her 91 Cutlass; Danesha sat next to her in the passenger seat rolling a blunt. Nicole and Carlene both sat in the back seat.

“How long do we have to wait on her to get here?” Carlene asked referring to Cheyenne. Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) She was the final member of their five girl crew.

“You know we can’t leave without here.” Whip snapped, turning down the volume Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) on the radio.

“Shit, why not she can stay here, and we can take Nick.” Carlene spat back.

“Nah, Nick ain’t cut out for that.”

Carlene laughed. “And she’s ready to start copping alone right?”

“I made the decision Carlene were not discussing it.” Whip was the leader. Not necessarily because she was Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) the toughest but more because she had elements of all of them within her psyche. She was a real hustler like Danesha, loyal like Nicole, a killer like Cheyenne, and a gangster like Carlene. Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) Carlene often bumped heads with Whip, Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) nothing personal just always testing her to Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) see if she would bend or break.

“You’ll do fine Nick.” Whip said looking at her in the backseat through the rearview mirror. Nicole remained silent, nodding at Whip with an assured stature about herself.

“Yeah, as long as she can stay off the bottle” Danesha added as she lit the blunt and took a pull. Nicole rolled her eyes.

“You can stay here and I can go to Illinois if you think you can do better.” Nicole snapped back. She was the youngest of the group only 19 years old. She found herself always having to fight for respect of the group. It was true she had a drinking problem she would never admit that to her girls especially not to Danesha or Carlene.

“You ain’t never killed nothing.” Danesha said handing the blunt to Whip.

“What that mean I’m supposed to be scared? The shit ain’t hard.”

“We done talking about this shit Danesha and Carlene leave Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) the girl alone damn; you bitches is worrisome as hell sometimes. Nick get the shit put it up, wait till we get back.”

“Alright.” She responded folding her arms across her chest.

“Cool, now get your ass out my car Cheyenne just pulled up.”

Nicole did as she was told climbing out as Cheyenne climbed in and sat in her place. Nicole stood watching as the car crept away leaving her standing alone.

The wind whistled and howled as Nicole pulled at the straps of her quarter length butter soft leather coat. A matching leather bag over her shoulder. She stuck her hands in her pockets as she rushed into the neighborhood lounge. Pausing to give the security guard a kiss on the cheek she slipped three nicely folded one-hundred dollar bills into his hand. For the three bills he skipped the pat down, and she walked right in with her .38 snub. With a wink and a Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) nod, she was off to her favorite booth in the corner of the bar. Nicole was a hustler in a crew of female hustlers. They earned a certain degree of respect that was equal if, not above the handful of top Black male hustlers in the city. They earned well and knew how to keep their mouth shut, so it wasn't unheard of for the local Costa Nostra to hire them to do certain favors from time to time. Everyone had a position to play, and Nicole played hers well. She could play all the parts that needed filling when they needed to be filled. She could fight and could sell it all from girl, coke, and weed to stolen cars, clothes, and information. She could turn coke to crack pretty well, though not as well as Whip, she got the job done regardless.

She was riding solo tonight because the other girls had to drive to Chicago for a job they were doing for Whip's brother. Even though she didn't go she would still get a split. She'd just come Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) from copping three kilos. She knew she should have gone straight to the stash house but figured she would stop off for drinks first. Nicole sat at her favorite table drinking shot after shot and turning down offers to dance by her many admirers. She was very nice to Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) look at only 19 years old and barely five feet her beautiful brown skin glowed no matter what the lighting in the room was like. Dark Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) brown bedroom eyes she illuminated beauty where ever she went. She was accustomed to all eyes being on her just as they were tonight.

Ickie was no exception. He'd spotted her the moment she entered the room. He sent over a bottle of champagne to let her know he was scoping her. Ickie was an associate of her crew. He ran different scams here and there and had been trying to get with Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) Nicole for a quite a while. He wasn't a bad looking man. Most of the women in the hood wanted him, but he just wasn't Nicole's type. Ickie was determined to change her viewpoint. He made his way to her table as the waitress popped the cork on the five hundred dollar bottle of liquor. Before she could pour a glass, he retrieved the bottle Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) from the waitress and shooed her off.

"How long you been working here?" Nicole asked jokingly as she picked up the glass and held it for him to pour the champagne. Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1)

Ickie poured the drink and Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) the champagne bubbled running over the glass and spilling onto Nicole's hand. Setting the bottle on the table, he quickly took her wet hand Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) and slowly licked the champagne from her fingers.

Nicole pulled from his grasp as she wiped the excess alcohol from her hand with a cloth napkin. "Thank you, for the Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) drink...and the foreplay," she said sarcastically.

"My pleasure, Nick. Where the rest of your girls at?"

Nicole placed a cigarette in her mouth, lit it, took a puff and blew the smoke in Ickie's direction. "Why?"

"Cause I asked."

Nicole turned her head away from Ickie. No longer paying him any attention she began nodding her head to the music. Ickie silently eased away from her table as he watched a man slide into the booth next to Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) Nicole and pour himself a glass of the champagne he had just bought. He stared at the two. He felt himself getting angrier with each shot he watched her take. She played him and she would pay. She'll be too drunk to even know what hit her, he thought as he formed a plan in his head. Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) The night progressed slowly from then on as he watched guy after guy get shot down by Nicole. The alcohol was starting to take its effect on her and the vultures were circling as they watched her stumble towards the door. Ickie slithered in her direction opening his suit jacket flashing the butt of his gun at a brother looking a little too overprotective beside her. Upon seeing the gun, the guy quickly backed down. Ickie then took Nicole by the arm.

She looked up ready Dope Fiction (Alpha Female Book 1) to scold him then stopped once she realized who it was. "Oh, Ickie, thank you. These brothers in here like...like..."
