FOREWORD

Blonde, beautiful, teenage Kelly was taking very private lessons!

Full-bodied, bosomy brunette Laurel Wilson was Kelly's teacher.

In high school, Kelly was just one of the many students who took English class from Laurel. But, outside of school — well!

In the privacy of Laurel's apartment, Kelly took much more intimate lessons, where not English, but French, was the subject taught.

Kelly lay on Laurel's bed, her pert breasts bared to show stiff nipples which shone from Laurel's licking kisses.

Laurel took down Kelly's blue jeans, caressing the teen lovely's long lithe legs as she uncovered them.

Jeans off, only a pair of thin panties stood between Laurel and her goal.

Kelly's precious, perfect pussy!

And now that goal was in sight, for Laurel had taken down the panties, exposing Lesbian Runaway Kelly's thin-lipped, heated pussy.

Moaning with hungry desire, Kelly, spread her legs so Laurel could kneel between them and give her more advanced lessons — in lesbian love!

CHAPTER ONE

Teen Kelly Kane was being kept prisoner in the attic. She had gotten caught...

It was about nine o'clock on a midwinter night, in the middle of the week. Kelly dreaded the imminent appearance of her hated step-father.

Kelly was in her mid-teens, an all-American beauty. Depression put her body in a slump, as well as lowering her spirits.

She had been kept penned up here Lesbian Runaway Lesbian Runaway for the last two days and nights, since that awful Monday when her world had fallen apart.

When she had gotten caught — caught sinning.

Thank heavens she had only been caught in a kiss, instead of some of the other things she often did with her... special lover.

Dan Waxer — her mother's husband (Kelly never could and never would think of him as her step-father, the idea was repellent) — had fixed up this attic cell.

It was her mother's Lesbian Runaway house, the Kane family house, once Kelly's house, too, but no longer; not since that man had moved in.

The house had a peaked roof, with the attic directly under it. Planks were laid across the rafters to make a floor.

Not all the attic was floored. At Lesbian Runaway the edges, where the pitch of the roof was so low that there was only a few feet of standing space, the boards had not been put in.

Dangling from the ceiling was a wire socket holding a bare, dim, unshaded lamp bulb providing the only light in that place.

Set close to the door was a metal cot, with a thin mattress, sheeted and blanketed. On that mattress, Kelly sat.

It was warm in the attic. The attic was loaded with old household items, including an ancient electric heater which still worked.

It was a small model, which she had set up close to her feet. Its glowing red wires threw off enough heat to keep her warm.

Kelly sat on the cot, with her feet on the floor, her elbows on her knees, and her head resting on her hands, brooding.

She was a lovely girl, with long straight fair hair, a delicately featured pink oval face, and a slim, slender body.

She wore a ski sweater and a pair of skin-tight, frayed, faded jeans. Socks covered her feet, and she had wrapped an old blanket on her shoulders.

Not far from her was the stairwell, a hollow containing eight steep, narrow wooden stairs which led up to the attic.

At the foot of the stairs was a solid panel door.

This old door showed new markings, where Dan Waxer had drilled holes through it to install a lock and hasp.

The door was locked from the outside — sealing Kelly in.

Lesbian Runaway
Keeping her prisoner.

Lesbian Runaway
For Lesbian Runaway what?

Kelly feared she knew the answer to that question all too well.

The door was solid, as Kelly had discovered when she tested it.

She was locked in.

The attic was very dark Lesbian Runaway and dim, even under the bare light bulb, whose wattage was weak, whose gloom was maddening to eyes that loved light.

Kelly was in low spirits. Her lovely hair hung limply, lank, needing washing.
