
Emma's Journey

Part Three: Starting Over

© Cynthia LeBlanc

Emma looked out of the window as she dried the cup that was in her hand. She had been distracted all day, hoping that James would come by for a visit.

Dr. James Parker had been visiting Emma regularly these days. At first, Emma was hesitant about it, but now she was looking forward to his company. It was nice having him to talk to.

She had never been able to talk to her late husband. Emma had come to marry Frank as a mail order bride, and although he seemed like a nice person initially, he turned out to be a harsh man, and had a love of whisky. He drank so much that he eventually fell sick with liver disease.

Dr. Parker had tried everything that he could think of to help Frank get well. Eventually, Frank succumbed to the disease and he passed away. His death had come like a blow Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) to Emma. Even though Frank was a difficult man to live with, she didn't want him to die. The entire reason that she had come to Nebraska in the Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) first place was because Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) her father had died, and now she was left with no one.

Emma lived with her father right up until the day that he passed on. Her mother had died when Emma was only a young girl, and Emma took care of her ailing father from that day on.

Emma always had a fascination with the medical field, and if circumstances had been different, she might have even been a nurse. Money had never allowed for that, Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) however.

Right before she decided to leave Chicago completely, Emma was fired from her seamstress job with a longtime family friend. That last setback combined with the fact that her father had passed away was a real blow to Emma, and she wasn't sure how she was going to be able to make it in the world.

It was a struggle for Emma to decide that she wanted to come Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) to Nebraska, but she had to admit, Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) she did love it here. It was in such contrast to what she was used to back in Chicago, that it felt like an entirely different world.

She had taken a lot of time to get used to the different surroundings, and enjoyed them, but it had been a difficult transition. When she had first come here, she thought that her husband, Frank, was a kind and caring man, but Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) she soon found that wasn't the case.

He always treated her more like a servant or a maid than he had a wife. He ordered her around, and demanded that she do all of the work, including Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) much of his own. That was when Frank started drinking a lot more, and would spend hour after hour in the barn.

He would show up at random times in the late morning or early afternoon, and Emma would have to make certain that dinner ready and on the table, Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) otherwise Frank would become abusive.

She remained Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) faithful to the fact that she married him, and as his wife it was her duty to be loyal and try to make him happy. Unfortunately, no matter how hard she tried, or how many things she did to please him, nothing seemed to work.

Then there was the matter of Dr. James Parker. It was clear that there was an attraction between them from the moment they first met, and they both felt it. Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) She had ignored her feelings at first, and had gone through with marrying Frank, but she had often wondered what it would be like if she had married Dr. Parker instead.

To further complicate things, she was carrying Frank's child, but she was glad. Since the moment that Emma found out that she was expecting, she felt more love for that child than she did for anyone else that she had ever met. It didn't matter that Frank didn't love her after that. This little boy or girl that was growing Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) in her belly was enough to make her happy.

Lately, she felt content. She was happily awaiting the arrival of her child, and had the farm and animals. James certainly made her happy, and their friendship had blossomed since the passing of her Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) husband.

Emma noted everything that James did. Every facial expression he made or every tone of voice that he used. It didn't matter what they were talking about, she felt a connection to him, and she watched to see if he returned the feeling.

James Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) didn't seem to care that Emma was expecting Frank's child. He seemed like he was genuinely excited about the baby, and he wanted her to be as happy and comfortable as possible in her pregnancy.

Emma could handle more things than he thought she would be able to, but she also did appreciate his help with work around the farm. She sold some of the animals on the farm that were difficult for her to take care of herself, but she did Mail Order Bride - Emma's Journey: Part Three - Starting Over (A Mail Order Bride Clean Western Romance) keep a couple of the horses so they would have a way to get around.

She had also sold the buggy, and one of the wagons. The plow, and a lot of the other heavy farm equipment went next, until Emma was left with a manageable load of chickens and a milk cow.

Her cow had recently had a calf, and Emma was pleased to discover that it was a heifer calf. She could let the mother raise the calf, and not have to worry about milking the mother for the rest of her pregnancy and for the first few months of her baby's life.

Then, when the heifer was old enough, she would have it bred, then sell the offspring. She would keep her old cow, and have her bred again the next year. Emma was a sharp trader, and was doing just fine on her own with her animals, but it was nice when James would move the hay bales for her and help her with moving the horses around.
