Chapter 1 - Megan

I open my umbrella and quickly run inside the grocery store. So much for the forecast being twenty percent chance of rain. I shake my head at the thought. I grab a shopping cart and begin shopping for tonight's dinner. My husband Foster and I haven't really been seeing eye to eye lately. We've been married for two years and have dated for seven. I scanned the aisle for some flour. I'm going to make Foster's favorite meal. Country fried Megan & Natalie steak with gravy, homemade mashed potatoes with cheese and chives, with a Megan & Natalie side of cauliflower and broccoli in a shrimp Megan & Natalie sauce. I'm hoping a romantic evening with some good food, and conversation can get us back on track. Grabbing a few other items, I proceeded to check out.

Driving home I thought about my life. I'm financially stable, being Megan & Natalie that I'm currently a CEO of one of the most prestigious and prosperous publishing companies in Atlanta. I'm beautiful standing at 5'7, 130 pounds. I'm light skinned with high cheek bones and an award winning, pearly, white smile. Many people say I favor Drew Sidora. I graduated with a 3.8 from Morris Brown College. I have my masters in journalism and business administration. Yet, I feel incomplete. Foster is a great man but he has a temper problem. I know sometimes I might be to blame since I have a slick mouth at times. I feel I owe Foster something because in a way, he rescued me. In order to work my way through college, I was a stripper at Magic City. I went to class during the day and stripped at night to pay my tuition. Foster was a regular at the club and would often pay me for private lap dances. Yet instead of actually getting the lap dance, he tried to get to know me. He never tried to sleep with me or come on to strong. He was different. He would actually try to strike up a conversation, asking me where I saw myself in five years, what were my goals and aspirations. Eventually we started dating and Foster paid the remainder of my tuition, so I quit stripping. The rest is history. Things were good between us until we got married. There is a different side of him that I've never seen before.

Foster is an architect and makes very good money. He told me I didn't have to continue to work anymore but I like my independence of bringing money into the house. Everyday Foster bombards me with questions on quitting my job and starting a family. I'm not ready for that. We always end up arguing because I stand up for myself. When I said those Megan & Natalie vows they were for better or worse. We will get through this and be the happy couple we were in the beginning.

I pull into my horseshoe driveway, and look at my beautiful home. It is Megan & Natalie a 5 bedroom, 4 bathroom house, Megan & Natalie with a pool, Jacuzzi, basketball court and entertainment/game room. I'm very blessed to live so comfortably.

I grab my groceries from the backseat of my car and head inside my home. I place the grocery bags on the island counter and hurry to take a shower. I stood in the shower and let the hot water run down my body. I lathered my sponge with my favorite body wash and washed the day away.

I finish preparing dinner and set the table. I lit candles throughout the living room and dining room. The house smelled so good. I learned to Megan & Natalie cook from my grandmother Rosie. She used to have me in the kitchen every Sunday. She practically raised me.

I prance to my bedroom and do a double take in my full length mirror. Megan & Natalie I'm wearing a cute black teddy from Victoria Secret. My hair is pinned into a bun with a swoop tucked behind my ear. I look damn good. Once Foster takes one look at me and the Megan & Natalie dinner I made, we will be making up all night!

Two hours have passed and Foster isn't home or answering his cell phone. I'm fuming. Dinner is cold and the candle wax is melting. Grabbing my cell phone from off the table, I double check to make sure he didn't call. Sure enough he didn't. I sigh and get up from the dining room table. I grab the plates, dump all the food into the trashcan, and blow the candles out. I begin to load the dishwasher when I hear Foster enter through the front door. I'm doing my best not to explode and let him explain first.

Foster walks into the kitchen and doesn't even mutter a word to me! I remind you I'm still standing in my black Victoria Secret teddy.

"Um, Hi Foster. How was your day?" I try to hide the disappointment in my voice.

"Work was work. I'm exhausted. I had to work late. Sorry I didn't call. Things have been pretty busy at the office." Foster grabs a glass from the cabinet Megan & Natalie and pours himself some wine. Megan & Natalie

"Well sweetie, I called your office line and cell phone a few times. I Megan & Natalie prepared dinner. I figured we needed a Megan & Natalie romantic night and some alone time.

"Didn't you just hear me say I'm exhausted? I've been working my ass off on the new design for the courthouse. I had a meeting that also ran overtime. I can't always answer every damn time you call me Megan. The last thing I need to hear is you complaining.”

I’m completely shocked at how rude and inconsiderate he’s being. He’s the one late, hadn’t asked about my day and is the one with a pissy attitude. I walk up to foster seductively and try to kiss him. He swats me away with his hand and gulps down the last bit of wine in his glass.

“I’m tired Megan. I just need to relax. I’m going to take a shower.” Foster starts walking towards the bedroom.

“Well maybe I can join you?”

“Not tonight. I’m beat. I’m going to shower and go straight to bed.”

The tears stung my Megan & Natalie eyes as I heard the bathroom door slam. Why does he have to be so damn mean to me?

Chapter 2 - Natalie

His punk ass is late again! I rolled my eyes as I saw his car pull up in my driveway. “Courtney, baby grab your things. Your father is outside.” My son is eleven and such a daddy’s boy. His father constantly let him down. Showing up late or sometimes not at all, when it came to taking his son for the weekend. Countless times I’ve had to hunt him down for child support. I’ve tried to remain cordial and never argue with Chauncey in front of our son Courtney.

There is a knock at the door and I know it has to obviously be Chauncey. I open the door and glare at him. “Hi, Natalie. Sorry I’m late. I got stuck in traffic.” For 3 ½ hours? I decided to keep my thoughts to myself. I step aside and let him enter Megan & Natalie my Megan & Natalie apartment. Gosh he smells so good wearing Liz Claiborne; Curve Soul. He resembles the rapper T.I. His arms are covered in Megan & Natalie tattoos.
