One by one the members of the inner sanctum of Lamia entered the grove by the Rancid River in rapt silence. Once a year, for two thousand years, on the night of the Devil Moon, members of this secret sect have gathered to await the arrival of Queen Lamia. Off in the distance a flickering candle could be seen crossing the river. Soon it became apparent that the candle was on a boat bearing a female cloaked in black.

As the boat progressed toward the shore Lamia signaled for the oarsman to stop; she reached in the water and pulled out a drowning kitten and muttered, "Some monster must have tried to kill this poor kitty." She carefully placed the shivering feline in a basket for safety, then signaled for him to continue.

As the boat touched shore a man rose and clapped two stones together. The muffled sound of an infant crying was the only other sound heard. Once at shore she walked up to the officer, gave him the baby and said, "Proceed."

Many have known her for the duration of years and could perceive Lamia was growing weaker – she could no Queen of Lamentation longer come out in the day - she shivered as she slid toward the darkened temple.

The child was lashed down to a three foot stone. It was tied with the intestines of their last victim. The members circle around the baby and begin to circumambulate chanting, "We have the REASON and the POWER!" The chant that began an ominous whisper soon rose to an excited roar. They then gathered stones to symbolize 'remorse' and began pelting the baby, which let out terrifying Queen of Lamentation screams. Soon the infant was a bloody mess and the queen walked up to it and drew forth a dagger to plunge into the chest and rip out the heart for Vengeance. "Here is some red meat, Regressives, as we stop the resurgent youth and take the world back; back to the DARK AGES!" She lifted the heart dripping with blood to her mouth and sucked the little sack of its contents and said, "I give you MORALITY!"
