Anna Samuels

Chapter 1

Admissions of guilt

'Annie! Come on in! Everybody's here!' Erin said, inviting me in.

'Thanks! Sorry I'm late, work was hectic today!' I told her.

'Anything interesting going on in the world today?'

'Well that woman who fell of the cliff and Skye survived...I was interviewing her for a story.'

'Oh wow! How exciting!' she exclaimed, leading me into the dining room which was full of women.

'Everyone! Annie's here!'

'Hi Annie,' Skye said standing and walked over to kiss my cheek.

'Hiya Skye Skye,' I smiled. I felt the usual frisson of attraction as she came close for a moment- I Skye always did when I was near her. Every time I saw Erin and Skye, I was reminded of my feelings for Skye. It had been there since the first time we had met and I had been entranced by her captivating presence. She was an incredible woman and I was very aware of her. The trouble was, she was my best friend's partner. Because of Skye that reason, I had always been nothing more than friendly towards her.

'Annie, this is Jenna and Ramona-I think you met them last time?'

'Yes...hi,' I smiled.

'And this is Jane...and this is Frankie-I work with them both at the magazine,' she explained.

'Oh right...nice to meet you,' I said to them both.

'Have a seat, Annie. I'm just getting the starter.'

'Thanks,' I smiled.

I was seated next to Jane on one side and Skye on the other. I began chatting to Jane who was a demure but friendly character as Erin came back and forth with the food.

When dinner began, Skye turned to me with a smile.

'So, how are you, Annie?'

'I'm good thanks. Busy but good.'

'Busy with work?' she asked.

'Yes and no...work is always hectic but I just got my own place too. It's been a hectic month-moving in, getting settled...'

'Oh how exciting! Yes, I think Erin told me now I come to think of it. Where have you moved to?' she wondered.

'I found a wonderful house on Sea Road-just across from the beach.'

'Wow! I love that area. I'd love to see it sometime.'

'Oh,' I said surprised, 'Well you're more than welcome to come by any Skye time.'

'Thanks. I'll take you up on that.'
