Chapter 1

It was a little after eleven o'clock p.m. when forty one year old Amir pulled the grey Tahoe out of the Birmingham Airport parking lot and began to make his way under the street lamps and the night sky towards downtown. Ahead of him, in the approaching distance, he could see the brightly lit skyline. Leaning back into his seat's leather, he listened to the Arabic music playing softly from You Got the Game Fucked Up! the SUV's sound system. Staring at the glowing taillights ahead of him, he couldn't wait to get home.

Amir had just gotten back from India. The trip had been a much needed one, one that was going to turn him and his You Got the Game Fucked Up! family's misfortunes around, one that was going to make him a whole lot of money.

His cell rang.

Seeing his wife's name appear on the touch screen of his You Got the Game Fucked Up! iPhone, Amir answered You Got the Game Fucked Up! the call in his native tongue.

---

“You home?” she asked in their native tongue also.

The two always liked to speak in Arabic during times when English wasn't absolutely necessary. It came in handy during times when they didn't want anyone knowing what they were talking about. It also helped them during moments when they were missing their country.

“Just arrived,” he told her. “Headed home right now. The children asleep?”

“Yes.”

“I'll take them to school tomorrow.”

Amir loved his children beyond words. They meant the entire world to him. Every decision he made, specifically business, revolved around what was best for them. America was the land of opportunity, of course. And he wanted his children You Got the Game Fucked Up! to have every opportunity possible.

Amir believed in education. He believed in hard work. He believed in family. He instilled each You Got the Game Fucked Up! of those things in his children. He made sure they got good grades. He made sure they spoke proper English. He made sure they were God fearing: all the things he knew they would need to become successful in life.

“I'll You Got the Game Fucked Up! be there in about twenty minutes,” Amir told his wife. “I love you.”

“I love you too.”

They ended their conversation.

Amir's mind was on tomorrow. He had a busy You Got the Game Fucked Up! day ahead of him. He was looking forward to it as he You Got the Game Fucked Up! came to a stop at a traffic You Got the Game Fucked Up! light behind a black Dodge Charger. Still listening to his music, he knew the next day was going to be the start of a prosperous situation that would be the answer to all his prayers. Finally, he'd be able to get out from under the mountain of debt he'd accumulated. He exhaled at the realization.

Then...

The driver's side door and the passenger's side door of the Charger opened. Emerging from both of them were two figures in long-sleeved You Got the Game Fucked Up! black Dickie suits. Over their faces were black ski masks. Both had a gun. Quickly they You Got the Game Fucked Up! approached Amir's SUV with the guns aimed directly at his windshield. He didn't know what to do. His heart rate sped up. His body trembled. He was enveloped in total fear.

"Unlock the door," one of the figures demanded, her voice that of a female as she reached Amir's door.

The other figure was now standing at the SUV's passenger door.

Amir was absolutely frozen as he stared out the window wide eyed at the gun aimed at him. His eyes wouldn't leave it. He was terrified it would go off and kill him. Flashes of his family's faces appeared in his head.

"Unlock the door now, muthafucka!"

Amir quickly looked from woman to woman.

---

You Got the Game Fucked Up!

“Unlock it, bitch, or get yo’ head blew off!”

Amir did as You Got the Game Fucked Up! he was told with trembling hands.

Clunk-clunk the locks sounded

Both women quickly snatched open the doors and You Got the Game Fucked Up! aimed the guns inside at Amir. “Put yo’ hands up, nigga!” the woman on the driver’s side yelled, spittle spewing from her mouth into Amir’s face.

“Please don’t do this,” he pleaded.

“Put ‘em up, hoe!”

He raised his hands.

“Where the fuck is it?” she asked.

“Where’s what?” he asked having no idea what she was talking about, You Got the Game Fucked Up! his body more tense than You Got the Game Fucked Up! he’d ever imagined it could be.

“Muthafucka, don’t play with us!” the other woman yelled. “Where is it?” Her hand was gripping the handle of her .44 Magnum tightly. Her finger was locked around its trigger. In her eyes it was obvious she’d squeeze off if she had to. You Got the Game Fucked Up!

---

Jabbing the tip of her .380 firmly against the center of Amir's forehead with so much force the back of his head slammed against the headrest, the woman on driver's side said through gritted teeth, "Nigga, you got 'til the count of three."

Click-Clack.

She cocked the gun's slide.

Amir's heart stopped at the sound. He saw his entire life passing in front of You Got the Game Fucked Up! him.

"If you don't give You Got the Game Fucked Up! it up, I'm splattering yo' muthafuckin' head all over this bitch!"

"But.."

"One!" she yelled.

"I don't know what..."

"Two!"

"I...I...I..."

"Three!"

---

“Okay, okay, okay,” he said quickly. “Please, don’t kill me. It’s in You Got the Game Fucked Up! the back. The suitcases are in the You Got the Game Fucked Up! back.”
